

Dream chaser manifesto

I believe that great people make amazing things happen.

I am curious and creatively brave. I believe in the power of people.

I create spaces for adventure so together we can explore and chase big dreams.
I seek out uncharted territory and push the boundaries of what I currently know.

I know that the moment I stop learning is the moment my dreams will fade.

I make connections between people, places and possibilities.
I light fires from the sparks that fly when people come together and share experiences, ideas, stories and uncertainties.

I believe that your voice matters.

I will listen when you speak and make sure I hear what you really say.
I will also take notice of what you leave unsaid; the spaces between your words.

I am not constrained by culture or expectation, by 'should' or by 'must'.
I question 'why, how, what, where or who'...a lot?
I will never consciously dismiss your ideas...however crazy you think they sound.
I will not settle for the first solution that is offered.

I promise to show up, be appropriately vulnerable, tell my truth, be me.
I bring kindness, care and compassion, always.

I hold onto what I believe and strive to make good choices – even when those choices feel impossible. Even when I am afraid I will find the courage to say
'I don't know', 'this is not right for me', 'no' and 'not yet'.
I accept that there are some things I cannot change...so I focus on those I can.

I 'walk my own talk' by constantly connecting what I say with what I do.

I am not perfect; I will mess up and get things wrong.
I will embrace these mistakes as part of my journey and know that 'good enough' is 'good enough'...as long as I give it my best shot.

I am a leader, a change agent, a lighter of fires, a chaser of dreams.
